

K. OF C. JUBILEE IS OBSERVED IN LOCAL CHURCH

Rt. Rev. Monsgr. Joseph M. Corrigan Delivers Impressive Sermon.

SOLEMN VESPERS SUNDAY EVENING

With all the pomp the Catholic church affords, Knights of Columbus of the thirty-first district observed the jubilee anniversary of the founding of their order at an impressive service in St. Francis Xavier Catholic church, West High street, Sunday evening. More than 800 Knights from the thirty-first and contiguous districts were present.

The Right Rev. Monsgr. Joseph M. Corrigan, rector of St. Charles Borromeo seminary, at Overbrook, and state chaplain of the Knights of Columbus, who preached the sermon, said Knights of Columbus may look, in retrospect, with "real gratification" upon their accomplishments of the past fifty years.

"The good works of the Knights of Columbus are spread bountifully upon the pages of Catholicity and the history of the nation," he declared, pointing specifically to the services of the organization in furthering education and its part in the world war.

Protect Nation

After pointing out that the country faces serious times in that wealth, greed and power are sapping the life blood of the people, Monsignor Corrigan declared that the remedy lies in bringing those outside the church into it. "It is up to you Knights to help in this great task," he asserted, declaring that the last census showed 63 per cent of the people in the United States with no professed religion.

"Stand fearlessly and firmly across the nation," he admonished, "to support those things for which this nation was founded. Protect your lives and those you hold dear and the rights of others in these days of social injustices."

The Rev. Mark E. Stock, rector of St. Francis Xavier church, officiated at the religious service, which included Solemn Vespers and the Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. He was assisted in the service by the Rev. Father John O'Donnell, rector of Conewago chapel, and the Rev. Father Joseph Whalen, rector of St. Mary's Catholic church, New Oxford. A number of other priests also were in attendance.

Special Music

Forty-four degree Knights of Columbus from York, each attired in full dress and wearing swords, occupied places of honor in the front pews of the church. As the Rev. Father O'Donnell elevated the Blessed Sacrament, the fourth degree Knights stood and unsheathed their swords.

Special music for the service was furnished by the choir, with Charles W. Stock directing and Miss Mary Ramer at the organ. Mrs. Charles J. Myers sang a solo.

Other priests in the sanctuary or on the occasion included the Rev. Father Philip Gergen, of Blue.

Political Display Is Omitted From Saturday Edition

A political display advertisement scheduled to appear in The Gettysburg Times, Saturday, for Robert E. Tipton, candidate for the republican nomination for the general assembly, was inadvertently omitted. The Times regrets this omission.

Mr. Tipton in his message said: "As a business man and a taxpayer I have a close personal interest in the affairs of our county and state and am anxious to see a substantial reduction in taxes for everybody. I would like to see proper regulation of all public utilities—this in the interest of all taxpayers and consumers of the product of the public utility companies."

"I am a firm believer in the restoration of our county and state affairs to a sound business basis . . . and the elimination of the professional politician."

Plan Evening Services in County Church

For the first time in many years, a series of evening services will be held in the Lower Marsh Creek Presbyterian church, May 9 to 13, inclusive, the Rev. D. W. Woods, pastor, announced today. The Rev. Mr. Woods expressed the opinion that this will be the first time since the church was erected in 1790 that evening services have been held there.

The church has no lighting system, but a temporary system will be installed for the series of services which will begin at 7:30 o'clock each evening.

The speakers for the services follow:

Monday evening, May 9, the Rev. Dr. Glenn M. Shafter, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, Carlisle; Tuesday evening, the Rev. Frederick B. Crane, Gettysburg; Wednesday evening, the Rev. R. Walter Anderson, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Carlisle; Thursday evening, the Rev. Warren J. Conrad, pastor of Convent Presbyterian church, Harrisburg; and Friday evening, the Rev. William H. Galbreath, of Shippensburg.

The services are open to the public.

Fairfield Fire Co. To Give Minstrel

Rehearsals for "Hits and Bits," a minstrel show, sponsored by the Fairfield fire company, are being held nightly in the high school under the direction of Miss Peg Sharpley, of Chambersburg. The show will be presented in the Odd Fellows' hall, Fairfield, May 6 and 7.

Black-face comedians, singers, dancers, specialty numbers and girls choruses combine to make "Hits and Bits" an outstanding attraction. Fifty persons are in the cast and choruses.

WEATHER REPORT

Cloudy with showers tonight and Tuesday. Not much change in temperature.

PRIMARIES TO DECIDE ISSUE IN MANY RACES

G. O. P. Have Many Contests For Local, State And National Office.

DEMOCRATS HAVE FEW SQUABBLES

Interest in Adams county's primaries tomorrow centers in the contests to be waged by republicans for local, state and national office. Democrats have contests only for delegates to the national convention from the York-Adams-Franklin district and delegates-at-large to the national convention.

Adams county republicans are divided on pro-Pinchot and anti-Pinchot candidates for the various offices for which nominations will be made, and it is on those lines that the fight will be waged in the balloting tomorrow.

Pro-Pinchot candidates, headed by G. R. Thompson, of Gettysburg, himself a candidate for republican county chairman, today predicted victory by substantial majorities, but the opponents of the Pinchot ticket, led by Elaine E. Bixler, Littlestown, candidate for county chairman, say the returns will show otherwise.

Taylor Fans Confident

Both factions of the republican party in this county are agreed that Leighton C. Taylor, of Bendersville, will be nominated for congress not only in this county, but in York and Franklin counties, as well. They predict that former Congressman Franklin Menges, of York county, will be second, with Samuel R. Boyer, also of York county, third.

The results of the contests for state senator from the Adams-Franklin district for representative in the general assembly from Adams county and for member of the state committee are somewhat in doubt with both factions of the republican camp claiming victory.

Republicans also have a three-cornered fight for United States senator ahead of them, with James J. Davis, Smedley D. Butler and William S. Adams as the candidates. Contests also exist for judge of the superior court, auditor general, delegates-at-large to the national convention and delegates to the national convention.

Last Rally Here

The last public political rally in Gettysburg was staged in center square here, Saturday evening, when speakers campaigned for the Pinchot slate for United States senator, judge of the superior court and auditor general.

Many Adams countians who work for the state at Harrisburg and elsewhere were returning home today to help at the primaries.

With showers predicted for Tuesday, it is doubtful if a heavy vote will be cast in Adams county. Leaders say it is difficult to get the voters to the polls at a primary election in fair weather, and even more so in rainy weather. Adams county's orchardists are busy and farmers are active in preparing their fields, and unless there is something unusual they refuse to vote at a primary, leaders said.

The polls open at 7 o'clock Tuesday morning and close at 7 o'clock Tuesday evening.

So far the only place announced where returns will be received is the commissioners' office at the court house.

Hint of Romance With Kreuger Given by Swedish Society Woman

Stockholm, Sweden, April 25 (AP)—A romance of many years' standing with the late Ivar Kreuger, the Swedish match king, was hinted at Sunday by Mrs. Ingeborg Eberth, Stockholm society woman, who was bequeathed 500,000 kroner (currently about $93,000) in Kreuger's will.

The sum will not be available, since the suicide and subsequent investigation into the financier's affairs showed no cash assets. But Mrs. Eberth said Kreuger made a last promise to her which leads her to believe 500,000 kroner is on deposit for her somewhere.

The woman described the financier, whose business methods have been questioned since his death, as a "fine, noble man."

Asked if she was "the woman" in Kreuger's life, she replied:

"If I answer that question it will be telegraphed all over the world. I will only say that he willed me the most."

Mrs. Eberth told a correspondent of Politiken, Copenhagen, that Kreuger's death was a complete

ASSAULT CASE OPENS SESSION

Joe DeFrank Accused Of Attacking Berlin School Teacher, March 1.

Trial of the action against Joe DeFrank, Italian boxer, cook and road worker, charged with assaulting Miss Kathryn Bosserman, a school teacher, of near East Berlin, was the first called to trial this afternoon by District Attorney John P. Butt as the April term of court got under way before Judge Donald P. McPherson.

DeFrank is charged with striking Miss Bosserman with a poker at the school at which she taught. He was prevented from inflicting further injury on the girl by Miss Bosserman's brother, who felled DeFrank with a blow of his fist. David E. Bosserman, the girl's father, is the prosecutor.

DeFrank has been in jail here since his arrest.

At the opening of court this morning at 10:30 o'clock, Judge McPherson appointed D. Roy Stoops, of Virginia Mills, as foreman of the grand jury.

The district attorney said the case against Guy Sheely, Littlestown, charged with a statutory offense, will be tried second. True bills were returned by the grand jury before noon against DeFrank and Sheely.

Constables who made returns when court opened included C. A. Fox, Gettysburg, third ward; Austin J. Neiderer, Mt. Pleasant township; J. L. Miller, Mt. Joy township, and S. L. Lerew, Latimore township.

Governors Will Hear President

Washington, April 25 (AP)—President Hoover today accepted an invitation to address the governors' conference at Richmond next Wednesday.

The sudden acceptance of the invitation probably will result in a meeting between the president and Franklin D. Roosevelt, governor of New York, and leading democratic candidate for the presidential nomination to oppose Mr. Hoover. Roosevelt is scheduled to address the conference Wednesday night.

The president's topic will be the relationship between the states and the federal government, economy and taxation.

Governors attending the conference already have accepted an invitation from Mr. Hoover to dine with him at the White House next Thursday.

Lindberghs Will Leave Sourlands

Hopewell, April 25 (AP)—The Lindberghs will move back to Englewood, this week, probably Wednesday, away from the Sourland hills home that has been the scene of so much sorrow for them in recent weeks.

Headquarters of the New Jersey state police, in charge of the hunt for the kidnapped Lindbergh baby, will be transferred to Trenton. Only two or three state troopers will be left at the estate to guard it against trespassers.

There have been no developments in the child hunt for several days. The Norfolk intermediaries, the aged educator who communicated with the kidnappers as "Jafie," and other independent agencies which have been involved in the baby hunt have made no report of progress.

8 FOREST FIRES UNDER CONTROL

Some Blazes On South Mountain Of Incendiary Origin.

Eight forest fires, which broke out on the east and west slopes of the South Mountains, Sunday afternoon, several of them believed to be of incendiary origin, today were reported either extinguished or under control.

John R. Williams, of Caledonia, state forester for the Mifflaux district, expressed the opinion, Sunday afternoon, that at least three of the fires were of incendiary origin. Carelessness of arbutus hunters, he added, was responsible for some of the other fires.

About noon, Sunday, a fire was discovered about a half mile west of the Echoltz place in the Narrows, but this was brought under control and extinguished several hours later.

Shortly afterward, three separate fires broke out on the east side of the Big Flat, near Wrenksville, and Mr. Williams and a group of volunteers hurried from the Narrows blare to fight them.

Although there was little wind blowing Sunday afternoon the fires spread rapidly because the mountains are unusually dry. No estimate of the area burned over could be learned.

Rain today helped lay the flames, and finally extinguished the fires.

So far as could be learned no property was destroyed by any of the fires.

County Girl Was Returning To School From Visit With Roommate.

3 COMPANIONS ARE IN AUTO

Death again swished its ghostly hand in the springtime of life for one of Adams county's most beautiful and charming personalities and the already grief-stricken community, mourning the loss of three lives in a tragic accident of a week ago, was shocked to new sorrows this morning as news of the sudden death of Miss Carolyn Louise Cole, 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Cole, The Narrows, reached Gettysburg.

Miss Cole died of a fractured skull, her forehead and the back of her head being crushed, a crushed knee and body bruises, sustained in an automobile accident at midnight, Saturday, three miles from Manassas, Virginia, where she had been visiting with her roommate, Miss Eloise Compton.

Miss Compton is still in a serious condition at Providence hospital, Washington, her injuries having not been fully disclosed.

The shocking mishap hints of brutality as minor details reveal the cause of the accident.

Forced Off Road

Miss Cole accompanied her roommate, Miss Compton, to the latter's home in Manassas, on Friday, Saturday evening the two young women, accompanied by two young men, residents of Manassas, but employed in Washington, started for the capital. Three miles from Miss Compton's residence a huge truck, said to be transporting liquor and without license plates, approached from the rear.

The two young couples are said to have driven their car to the side of the road to permit the truck to pass. The huge vehicle is said to have swerved into the other machine, forcing it from the road and upsetting the car.

The accident happened at midnight, according to Mr. Cole who telephoned details of the accident here, and four hours later the unconscious forms were found near the roadside. They were taken to the Manassas hospital but when the seriousness of their condition was revealed they were transferred to the Providence hospital at 6 o'clock Sunday morning.

The two young men, whose names were not learned by Mr. Cole, were treated and discharged from the hospital later Sunday.

Was Chosen Queen

Miss Compton regained consciousness long enough to reveal her story of the accident. Miss Cole remained unconscious most of the time, regaining consciousness once or twice when she made a feeble attempt to speak but was not able to do so.

Miss Cole, a member of the graduating class of the Marjorie Webster school of expression, Washington, was recently elected "Queen of the May" exercises, scheduled for May 2 at the school. She was to graduate in June.

Miss Compton's injuries consist of a broken nose, fractured leg and arm and most of her teeth were knocked out. She is in a serious condition.

An inquest may be held Tuesday. H. B. Bender and Son, funeral directors, will go to Washington and return Miss Cole's body to the home in The Narrows. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Mr. and Mrs. Cole rushed to Washington when they learned of the accident and were at their daughter's bedside when she passed away.

Other survivors are brothers and sisters Edward and Anna, twins, age 15, and George, 14.

REAL ESTATE TAXES ARE DUE

15 Local Property Owners Face Liens Unless Settlement Is Made

Forty-five Gettysburg property owners face the prospect of having liens placed against their properties unless they pay real estate taxes, now overdue, within a few days, William Ogden, borough tax collector, announced today.

According to Mr. Ogden, he is unable to give his bond for this year's duplicate until he has settled in full for all back taxes. He said he had given the delinquents notice to pay their taxes before April 15, and many of them had settled.

He said he is preparing to enter the tax liens at the court house within a day or two. If the liens are not settled, the properties will be sold for the taxes, he added.

Between 900 and 1,000 local residents are in arrears on personal taxes, such as school, poll and occupation taxes, Mr. Ogden said. He announced that he will give these delinquents, none of whom own real estate, until May 5 to pay the back taxes, and after that time he will levy on their personal property. In lieu of personal property on which to levy and sell, Mr. Ogden said he will have the delinquents committed to jail.

The shocking mishap hints of brutality as minor details reveal the cause of the accident.

Forced Off Road
Miss Cole accompanied her roommate, Miss Compton, to the latter's home in Manassas, on Friday, Saturday evening the two young women, accompanied by two young men, residents of Manassas, but employed in Washington, started for the capital. Three miles from Miss Compton's residence a huge truck, said to be transporting liquor and without license plates, approached from the rear.

The two young couples are said to have driven their car to the side of the road to permit the truck to pass. The huge vehicle is said to have swerved into the other machine, forcing it from the road and upsetting the car.

The accident happened at midnight, according to Mr. Cole who telephoned details of the accident here, and four hours later the unconscious forms were found near the roadside. They were taken to the Manassas hospital but when the seriousness of their condition was revealed they were transferred to the Providence hospital at 6 o'clock Sunday morning.

The two young men, whose names were not learned by Mr. Cole, were treated and discharged from the hospital later Sunday.

Was Chosen Queen
Miss Compton regained consciousness long enough to reveal her story of the accident. Miss Cole remained unconscious most of the time, regaining consciousness once or twice when she made a feeble attempt to speak but was not able to do so.

Miss Cole, a member of the graduating class of the Marjorie Webster school of expression, Washington, was recently elected "Queen of the May" exercise, scheduled for May 2 at the school. She was to graduate in June.

Miss Compton's injuries consist of a broken nose, fractured leg and arm and most of her teeth were knocked out. She is in a serious condition.

An inquest may be held Tuesday. H. B. Bender and Son, funeral directors, will go to Washington and return Miss Cole's body to the home in The Narrows. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Mr. and Mrs. Cole rushed to Washington when they learned of the accident and were at their daughter's bedside when she passed away.

Other survivors are brothers and sisters, Edward and Anna, twins, age 15, and George, 14.

A seven-run rally in the sixth inning spelled defeat for the upper county. New Oxford gave a miserable exhibition of fielding by stacking up nine errors but managed to get enough "breaks" to win.

BRIDE LEFT AT CHURCH
A VICTIM OF FUNSTERS

Bridegroom Is Kidnapped Just After Ceremony And Honeymoon Is Frustrated.

Kenneth E. Haverstock, member of the operating staff at the Harrisburg hotel, Harrisburg, and Miss Ruth A. Engle, manicurist at the same hotel, went through Gettysburg this morning to Frederick and were married at 11 o'clock by the Rev. Amos John Praver. They were trailed by several automobile loads of fellow-workers and as they left the church, the bridegroom was "kidnapped" and swished off toward Harrisburg. Others remained to take care of the bride.

The bride, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Engle, of Middletown, and her party came on to Gettysburg and began a vigil at the Hotel Gettysburg. They remained two hours this afternoon, then gave up hope of meeting the bridegroom here and started back to Harrisburg. Their interrupted honeymoon to Washington will be taken up when they elude their captors—practical jokers all.

Pastor Urges

ple who let the wet newspapers do their thinking for them are carried away by such arguments which have no foundation to them.

"There are two fallacies to that argument. In one breath we hear there is more liquor used now than under the old system of saloons. If that be true then there is more grain used now than under that former system, and a return of a legalized traffic would mean not more but less used than now. The one argument of the wets defeats the other.

"Another statement we often hear," continued the speaker, "is that we must bring back the traffic in liquor, tax it as of old and by that means we shall bring back prosperity to all, and restore the budget of our government. This means put the government into the business of debauching life and character.

"Long, long ago God said through the prophet Habbakuk, 'Woe to him that giveth his neighbor drink and putteth his bottle to him and maketh him drunken also.' Again through Paul He said, 'that those who practice drunkenness shall not inherit the Kingdom of God.' If there is no place in heaven, in God's Kingdom, for a drunkard, there is only one place he can go—hell."

In concluding the pastor said: "Every Christian has a legal right to vote as he or she pleases. But in the text we are warned not to use our members as instruments of sin, but as instruments of righteousness unto God." God pronounces his woes upon him who makes his neighbor drunk. As a Christian I do not want that woe resting upon me."

New York, April 25 (AP)—Newspapers of America "have not shirked their duty to the public of publishing the news in adequate form," in spite of present conditions, Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press, said today in his annual report to the board of directors of the association.

"To maintain the standards reached in recent years all publishers have had to sustain severe losses."

MAROONS BEAT MERCERSBURG

Gettysburg High Baseballers Wallop Academy Nine 8 To 1.

Gettysburg high school won its initial baseball game of the season on Saturday by handing out a surprising 8-1 defeat to the strong Mercersburg academy nine at Mercersburg.

George Beamer, starting his first game in Maroon livery, hurled a beautiful game, allowing but six hits. The run scored off of him was the result of a long home run by Johnson. Beamer was in trouble on several occasions but each time proved his ability by working out of the tight places without any scoring.

The Martinnen landed on the Mercersburg pitcher for six runs in the first frame and coasted in on this lead. The locals scored once in each the second and fifth innings.

Kittinger was the hitting star of the game with four safeties in five official trips to the rubber. Beamer collected two hits while Jones, Dickson, Anthony and Rebert were good for a hit apiece.

The Maroon hitting order was as follows: Kitzmiller, ss.; Jones and Rupp, c.; Anthony, 2b.; Kittinger, rf.; Dickson, lf.; Rebert, 3b.; Knox, lf.; Beamer, p. and Plank, 1b.

Score by innings:

KANAWHA DAM CAVES IN; 6 DIE

Sandy Banks, Weakened By Rains, Crumble; Night Shift Trapped.

Marmet, W. Va., April 25 (AP)—Tons of earth, torn from the banks of the Kanawha river, brought death Saturday night to at least six workmen on the new federal government dam under construction here.

Sandy banks, weakened by recent rains, crumbled down on the men of the night shift as they worked in a pit on the landward side of the lock. Two men were trapped in that cave-in.

Second Slide Traps Rescuers

Between fifty and seventy-five men went to the aid of their entombed comrades, and a second and larger slide sent one hundred tons of dirt down on the rescue workers.

Five bodies were recovered and identified as those of James Lewis Collins, 35; Alfred Raush, 18, a water boy; Delbert Gordon, Harry Coleman, 30, formerly of Poolesville, Ohio, and Lewis M. Thornton, 22. All lived near Marmet.

Rescue workers believed only one body remains buried and that it is that of Chester Ryan, 18, of Kittanning, Pennsylvania. However, they plan to sift the small mountain of earth to make certain.

The second cave-in, in addition to burying four men, carried a two-story toolhouse and a small shed into the fifty-foot pit and disrupted the camp's lighting system. For several hours two floodlights far out on the cofferdam furnished the only light for the seventy-five rescue workers and a steam shovel in the search for the missing men. The slide also cracked a gas line, liberating a considerable quantity of gas and causing workmen to fear an explosion.

Four bodies were recovered Saturday night within four hours after the cave-in, but the rescue crews and steam shovel worked in vain the rest of the night seeking the bodies of Gordon and Ryan. Gordon's body was found late Sunday.

HITLER FAILS TO SNATCH POWER

Defeated For Presidency, Fascist Leader, Grabs New Seats.

Berlin, April 25 (AP)—Adolf Hitler's national socialists (fascists) became the strongest political party in five German states, including Prussia, which alone constitutes two-thirds of Germany, in Diet elections Sunday, but nowhere did they prove strong enough to take over the government alone.

While in Anhalt, and possibly in Wurttemberg, they were almost certain to head Rightist coalitions, they apparently failed to gain a place in the cabinets of Prussia, Bavaria and Hamburg.

Three Fatalities Reported

A bitter campaign for supremacy between the republican government factions and the Fascist legions of the fiery Hitler, who only two weeks ago failed to win the German presidency from President von Hindenburg, ended with three fatalities, a number of other casualties and minor disorders.

The election determined the political complexion of the state Diets. All parties concentrated their efforts on Prussia on the theory that "whoever controls Prussia controls the Reich." Here the Nazis made a gain from seven seats to 162 at the expense of the German nationals, people's and state's (democratic) parties, which suffered crushing defeats.

Socialists Are Heavy Losers

The only other party gaining in Prussia was the communist, which now has 57 as compared to its former 48. The social democrats (socialists) were heavy losers, dropping from 137 to 93. Even the Catholic centrists lost four seats.

The official final count in the Prussian election returns, showing a total of 22,402,000 votes, was:

National socialists, 8,008,000; social democrats, 4,675,000; centrists, 3,374,000; communists, 2,820,000; German nationalists, 1,525,000; state's party, 332,000; people's party, 331,000; Christian socialists, 255,000; economic party, 191,000; farmers, 177,000; smaller parties, 714,000.

LOCAL TEAM DOWNED 20-6

Wildcats Tounce Gettysburg Collegians In Hectic Tilt Saturday.

Pounding the offerings of Johnny Howard and Bill Cowell for 21 safe hits and 20 runs, the strong undefeated Villanova college baseball team hung up its fifth straight win Saturday afternoon by romping over Ira Plank's Gettysburg college team at Philadelphia, 20-6.

Nine runs in the second inning proved the undoing of the Bullets. Howard was batted out of the box in this frame and Cowell, who took his place, received rough treatment.

Every Villanova player collected one or more hits, Lynch leading the attack with four safeties, two of which were doubles. Captain Boughter led the Gettysburg assault with a trio of safeties.

This defeat was the second in a row for the Bullets and they are hoping to break into the win column Tuesday afternoon when they meet the Hagerstown Moller organ factory team on the college diamond at 4 o'clock.

You Can't Marry

by Julia Cleft-Addams

SYNOPSIS: Jenny Revell overhears a conversation between her cousin, George, and Garth Aveney, which she believes refers to George's secret engagement to Eddie Townsend. She is unhappy because she likes Aveney, and she first met him that evening, and she seems to prefer George. Unknown to Jenny, Aveney has been testing out George's loyalty to her employer, Gratton Matching. She has an unusual job, complicated by Matching's eccentric regulations, such as his threat of discharging any woman in his employ who marries. George has promised to marry Eddie tomorrow, and she agrees to keep the marriage secret so that she can go on with her work, which pays very well. She has made plans for the marriage, which is for Jenny's cooperation. Undiscovered in the next room, Jenny hears Aveney say to George, "I'm going to marry myself." Then, "Good night, Miss Loyalty. I'm forgiven then."

Chapter 8
DEAD SECRET
"I s'pose so. I'm glad you feel ashamed of yourself, though," George was saying to Aveney.
"I don't know that I feel ashamed exactly. After all, you agree that I wasn't given any choice. But you've been magnificent. He ought to thank his stars for you," Jenny heard Aveney answer.
"He won't. Takes me for granted. Goodnight."

Jenny burrowed down into her pillows. "He," she had no doubt, was Eddie. And Garth Aveney was right. Eddie ought to thank his stars for his splendid George. He probably did. Jenny really couldn't agree that he took George one scrap for granted. And now Garth Aveney, dismissed, empty-handed, was driving alone through the gleaming streets. He would not carry even the shadow of laughter, now.

The cool linen comforted Jenny's aching eyes. It was not that she was crying—oh, no, not that; only—only it was bitter hard to care so much for someone who, whether she wanted him or not, was George's.

"Jenny!"
George had clicked on the light and stood amazed in the doorway, Jenny struggled up.

"I had a headache, George, and I felt I couldn't face the Crescendo, so I came straight home. Mr. Vale didn't mind a bit; some friends of his, stage-people, were going on there and he joined them. Anywa, it was no fun for him, once you and Mr. Aveney couldn't stay."

"Aveney!"
George laughed. She sounded pleased, discomfited, amused all in one. She came and sat on the edge of the bed.

"Garth Aveney brought me back from Rochester Gate—I didn't feel like the Crescendo, either."

"Mr. Aveney is awfully interested in you, isn't he?" It was what Jenny had determined not to say; and she had said it.

"Oh—Aveney!" repeated George. "He's a queer fish. But he's a good sport. I'll tell you all about him one day." With that she brushed him out of the conversation.

"I've something far more thrilling to talk about now. Ed and I are getting married, Jen, tomorrow. At mid-day. Ed's flying to night, but he seems to think he can be back in time. The ceremony is to be kept a dead secret but you must come."

"Oh, George! Oh, I am so glad you're marrying Ed, after all!"

"But, you dead little fool, whom else did you think of marrying?"

"As long as no one actually spies on me during the next week, the risk isn't too terrible," George continued, and lit a cigarette. "After that, with Ed away, I can always spin some yarn—any yarn. Even—"

"—she giggled suddenly—"that it was you Eddie married, not me!"

She sobered suddenly and sat staring at her cousin.

"Infant, that's rather an ideal! The Old Man knows we share the same names. At a pinch I could tell him—but, of course, the pinch is not remotely likely to come. Only if it did, well—Eddie would never know it, out there in Mexico. And you wouldn't mind, would you? It wouldn't make the faintest difference to you?—Would it?"

"Well, would it?"

"N-no," stammered Jenny. "No, I suppose I shouldn't mind."

She was taken aback, tingling with that sense of affront that George could so suddenly rouse in her. How—how dared George—coarse-grained, reckless, successful man—how dared she?

Then, on to the dark screen of her anger slid the outline of a tall man walking away from her without farewell; threading his path eagerly round a crowded room to pass out at a door through which George had gone.

"No," she said heavily, "it wouldn't make the faintest difference to me."

Old Gratton Matching took up his bedside telephone, gave the number of his general manager, shook the instrument viciously when no voice immediately answered, and, holding the earpiece in position, re-absorbed himself in his model dynamos.

"Who's that?" he muttered absently when at last the voice of Harold H. Croze came to him. "No, I didn't ring you up. Yes, I did. His voice climbed to its nerve-racking squeak."

"Yes, I did, I wanted you to know that my nephew, a complete stranger to my secretary, this evening offered her $25,000 down, $2,500 a year, half her salary—to repeat the estimates that have gone by plane tonight. And she refused."

and reported the bribe to me. . . . Naturally he was acting on my instructions—who else's? . . . You didn't know her salary was so high? Let me tell you that unless she's fool enough to get married, it'll be half as high again before she's done." His squeak became almost a scream: "Only person who can hear what I say. . . ."

He threw aside the telephone, switched off the lamp, and, fumbling for a pear-drop, lay sucking contentedly in the darkness.

Jenny strayed into a park with a gasp of gratitude. She had an hour to wait before George got married; here was the place to wait in. She sat down on a bench and a tabby cat came and began to side round her. It was a fat, friendly cat and Jenny hoped it would not soon go away; she would have enticed it on to her lap but she had on a clean white frock. Not by any means a "wedding-garment"—George had been emphatic about the omission of wedding-garments. "If we can all three slip in—and especially out—of the City Hall without attracting attention, we've a good chance of getting away with the whole scheme."

"Yes, I can see that. . . . I should think so long as Eddie isn't recognized we shall manage all right. It's afterwards, George, when I'm at the hotel, that your secret will want such a lot of keeping."

But George had not admitted that. The janitor of the apartment, could be squared—heaps of people, if the worst came, could be squared. When Jenny had installed her belongings in the nicest room she could find in the nearby hotel, would she be a helpful pet and call at an employment agency about a really competent daily servant—and hang the expense? Of course, Jenny would; and did. And by one of those chances that do occasionally happen, before she had even finished explaining "Mrs. Townsend's" requirements to the clerk—a cheery, capable-looking woman came in who seemed quite pleased to be engaged to start work next Monday.

So that Jenny, who had allowed a full hour for this task, found herself at a loose end. She didn't want to go back to the hotel, which was stuffy; or to the apartment where George, an efficient whirlwind, was transforming their tiny "bachelor room" into a dressing room for Eddie. So she made a leisurely way downtown.

Sitting now on her bench, Jenny looked across the snapdragon-bed and tried to identify the building from the back. . . . She saw a man lower a green blind at a window and thought that might well be the room in which this furtive wedding would take place.

"Furtive! She caught her breath. She had no right to call it that. . . . E-earrowls! (tshtzwtwoo . . . &&& George couldn't ever do anything furtive. If she and Eddie had agreed that the job at Matching's must be kept at any cost and every cost—and certainly it made a difference that Eddie was soon to go so far away and for a whole year—Jenny, in a tangle, stopped haranguing herself.

A man—a tall, slim-built man—swung round the corner and came past the snapdragons. Jenny's finger under the tabby cat's imperiously lifted chin went rigid.

A mild clamor went up in her heart—will he see me—will he stop—will he pass on? . . . And then, like an axe hacking at the roots of a budding tree, there pounded in upon her the knowledge that if George's secret were to be kept, Garth Aveney must pass on his way without seeing George's cousin there at all. . . .

—How can Jenny hide? She must, tomorrow, and yet she wants Aveney to see her.

Hollywood Sights & Sounds

By Robbin Coons

Hollywood—The man of the hour among screen writers today, because he knows about China, is Harry Hervey, a chubby, soft-voiced fellow. At 31 Hervey's temples already are flecked with gray—perhaps because he has been through a lot of adventure in China.

As early as 9 years of age his mind was attracted to the Far East by books of adventure he read, and he was just a youngster when he made his first trip to the Orient with his father.

That "mystic spell of the east" you read about must have crept into his blood, for he has been going back time and again ever since, absorbing the atmosphere, acquainting himself with natives and their customs, and turning out, when he returned to America, novels and short stories which have had healthy sales.

It was without conscious planning that he stored away a fund of rich material that is serving him well as a movie writer in the present vogue

for films about China and its troubles.

Timely Film

The screen is reaching out now, not only for his services on original stories, but also for screen rights to his novels such as "The Iron Widow" and "Congal."

Hervey was writing "Shanghai Express" for the screen long before the Sino-Japanese crisis reached the shooting stage, and thus it was ready for release at the most opportune time.

The story Hervey wrote, as he told it to me, bears little more resemblance to the movie that was made of it than the film "Prestige" bears to Hervey's story "Lips of Steel," from which it was taken. But Hollywood is like that, and Hervey doesn't mind.

Three Stories At Once

He says: "I'm doing this picture work—and as well as I can—to make enough money to let me do afterwards what I want to do. Right now I'm working on three stories at once and am a little confused."

A native of Beaumont, Texas, Hervey passed up conventional schooling, as far as his parents would let him, in favor of the more exciting education of travel. It was always the East that called him—India at first, then China, which he prefers.

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting

Itching, bleeding, protruding piles are caused by bad circulation of the blood in the affected parts. The parts become weak, flabby, almost dead. Only an internal remedy can remove the cause—that's why salves, suppositories and cutting fail. Dr. Leonhardt's prescription, HEM-ROID, succeeds because it removes congestion, restores circulation, heals and strengthens the diseased parts. HEM-ROID has such a wonderful record of quickly ending even piles of long standing, that People's Drug Store says one bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets must end your pile agony or money back.

New York—Color film, certain wise men in the business end of the movies point out, has had several "comeback tests in the past after defects and expense removed it from the screens of the land. Each return has marked great progress in technique.

Laboratory improvements, they say, may assure general and lasting favor for color film, in feature picture production the very next time it gets a good chance—and that, despite the "skeptics," will be the first time financial conditions warrant the taking of any more chances by the industry.

At any rate, it seems safe to say that color film is no more "dead" than old Aunt Cynthia's straying cat.

They say the logical development will be the provision of all de luxe theaters to switch to wide screen effects in the course of a showing—an arrangement which is no novelty to big town fans. As for the close-ups of Joan Garbo and Clark Bar-more in the clinch, or shots of the poor but honest heroine's two-by-four hall room, they won't be magnified.

All of which again illustrates the sameness ultimately enforced upon so-called commercial art. Consideration of the box-office protects it against running completely ga-ga over each new idea, yet encourages it to accept, in moderation, the best any new movement has to offer.

You Can't Marry

by Julia Cleft-Addams

SYNOPSIS: Jenny Revell overhears a conversation between her cousin, George, and Garth Aveney which she believes refers to George's secret engagement to Eddie Townsend. She is unhappy, because she liked Aveney when she first met him that evening, and he seems to prefer George. Unknown to Jenny, Aveney has been testing out George's loyalty to her employer, Gratton Matching. She has an unusual job, complicated by Matching's eccentric regulations, such as his threat of discharging any woman in his employ who marries. George has promised to marry Eddie tomorrow, since he agrees to keep the marriage secret so that she can go on with her work, which pays very well. She has made plans for the marriage, which call for Jenny's cooperation. Undiscovered in the next room, Jenny hears Aveney say to George, "I'm going to justify myself." And then, "Good night, Miss Loyalty. I'm forgiven then."

Chapter 8

DEAD SECRET

"I s'pose so. I'm glad you feel ashamed of yourself, though," George was saying to Aveney.

"I don't know that I feel ashamed exactly. After all, you agree that I wasn't given any choice. But you've been magnificent. He ought to thank his stars for you," Jenny heard Aveney answer.

"He won't. Takes me for granted. Good night."

Jenny burrowed down into her pillows. "He," she had no doubt, was Eddie. And Garth Aveney was right. Eddie ought to thank his stars for his splendid George. He probably did. Jenny really couldn't agree that he took George one scrap for granted. And now Garth Aveney, dismissed, empty-handed, was driving alone through the gleaming streets. He would not carry even the shadow of laughter, now.

The cool linen comforted Jenny's aching eyes. It was not that she was crying—oh, no, not that; only—only it was bitter hard to care so much for someone who, whether she wanted him or not, was George's. "Jenny!"

George had clicked on the light and stood amazed in the doorway. Jenny struggled up.

"I had a headache, George, and I felt I couldn't face the Crescendos, so I came straight home. Mr. Vale didn't mind a bit; some friends of his, stage-people, were going on there and he joined them. Anywa, it was no fun for him once you and Mr. Aveney couldn't stay."

"Aveney!"

George laughed. She sounded pleased, discomfited, amused all in one. She came and sat on the edge of the bed.

"Garth Aveney brought me back from Rochester Gate—I didn't feel like the Crescendos, either."

"Mr. Aveney is awfully interested in you, isn't he?" It was what Jenny had determined not to say; and she had said it.

"Oh—Aveney!" repeated George. "He's a queer fish. But he's a good sport. I'll tell you all about him one day." With that she brushed him out of the conversation.

"I've something far more thrilling to talk about now. Ed and I are getting married, Jen, tomorrow. At mid-day. Ed's flying tonight, but he seems to think he can be back in time. The ceremony is to be kept a dead secret but you must come."

"Oh, George! Oh, I am so glad you're marrying Ed, after all!"

"But, you dead little fool, whom else did you think of marrying?"

"As long as no one actually spies on me during the next week, the risk isn't too terrible," George continued, and lit a cigarette. "After that, with Ed away, I can always spin some yarn—any yarn. Even—" she giggled suddenly—"that it was you Eddie married, not me!"

She sobered suddenly and sat staring at her cousin.

"Infant, that's rather an idea! The Old Man knows we share the same names. At a pinch I could tell him—but, of course, the pinch is not remotely likely to come. Only if it did, well—Eddie would never know it, out there in Mexico. And you wouldn't mind, would you? It wouldn't make the faintest difference to you? Would it?"

"Well, would it?"

"N-no," stammered Jenny. "No, I suppose I shouldn't mind."

She was taken aback, tingling with that sense of affront that George could so suddenly rouse in her. How—how dared George—coarse-grained, reckless, successful man—how dared she?

Then, on to the dark screen of her anger slid the outline of a tall man walking away from her without fawking; threading his path eagerly round a crowded room to pass out at a door through which George had gone.

"No," she said heavily, "it wouldn't make the faintest difference to me."

Old Gratton Matching took up his bedside telephone, gave the number of his general manager, shook the instrument viciously when no voice immediately answered him and, holding the earpiece in position, re-absorbed himself in his model dynamos.

"Who's that?" he muttered absently when at last the voice of Harold H. Croze came to him. "No, I didn't ring you up. Yes, I did. His voice climbed to its nerve-racking squeak."

"Yes, I did. I wanted you to know that my nephew, a complete stranger to my secretary, this evening offered her $25,000 down, $2,500 a year, half her salary—to repeat the estimates that have gone by plane tonight. And she refused and reported the bribe to me. . . . Naturally he was acting on my instructions—who else's? . . . You didn't know her salary was so high? Let me tell you that unless she's fool enough to get married, it'll be half as high again before she's done." His squeak became almost a scream. "Only person who can hear what I say. . . ."

He threw aside the telephone, switched off the lamp, and, fumbling for a pear-drop, lay sucking contentedly in the darkness.

Jenny strayed into a park with a gasp of gratitude. She had an hour to wait before George got married; here was the place to wait in. She sat down on a bench and a tabby cat came and began to sidle round her. It was a fat, friendly cat and Jenny hoped it would not soon go away; she would have enticed it on to her lap but she had on a clean voile frock. Not by any means a "wedding-garment"—George had been emphatic about the omission of wedding-garments. "If we can all three slip in—and especially out—of the City Hall without attracting attention, we've a good chance of getting away with the whole scheme."

"Yes, I can see that. I should think so long as Eddie isn't recognized we shall manage all right. It's afterwards, George, when I'm at the hotel, that your secret will want such a lot of keeping."

But George had not admitted that. The janitor of the apartment could be squared—heaps of people, if the worst came, could be squared. When Jenny had installed her belongings in the nicest room she could find in the nearby hotel, would she be a helpful pet and call at an employment agency about a really competent daily servant—and hang the expense? Of course, Jenny would; and did. And by one of those chances that do occasionally happen, before she had even finished explaining "Mrs. Townsend's" requirements to the clerk, a cheery, capable-looking woman came in who seemed quite pleased to be engaged to start work next Monday.

So that Jenny, who had allowed a full hour for this task, found herself at a loose end. She didn't want to go back to the hotel, which was stuffy; or to the apartment where George, an efficient whirlwind, was transforming their tiny lumber-room into a dressing room for Eddie. So she made a leisurely way downtown.

Sitting now on her bench, Jenny looked across the snapdragon-bed and tried to identify the building from the back. . . . She saw a man lower a green blind at a window and thought that might well be the room in which this furtive wedding would take place.

Furtive! She caught her breath. She had no right to call it that. EEareowla tshztzwtoo .&& George couldn't ever do anything furtive. If she and Eddie had agreed that the job at Matching's must be kept at any cost and every cost—and certainly it made a difference that Eddie was soon to go so far away and for a whole year—Jenny, in a tangle, stopped haranguing herself.

A man—a tall, slim-built man—swung round the corner and came past the snapdragons. Jenny's finger under the tabby cat's imperiously lifted chin went rigid.

A mild clamor went up in her heart—will he see me—will he stop—will he pass on? . . . And then, like an axe hacking at the roots of a budding tree, there pounded in upon her the knowledge that if George's secret were to be kept, Garth Aveney must pass on his way without seeing George's cousin there at all. . . .

(Copyright, Julia Cleft-Addams)

How can Jenny hide? She must, tomorrow, and yet she wants Aveney to see her.

Hollywood

Sights & Sounds

By Robbin Coons

Hollywood—The man of the hour among screen writers today, because he knows about China, is Harry Hervey, a chubby, soft-voiced fellow. At 31 Hervey's temples already are flecked with gray—perhaps because he has been through a lot of adventure in China.

As early as 9 years of age his mind was attracted to the Far East by books of adventure he read, and he was just a youngster when he made his first trip to the Orient with his father.

That "mystic spell of the east" you read about must have crept into his blood, for he has been going back time and again ever since, absorbing the atmosphere, acquainting himself with natives and their customs, and turning out, when he returned to America, novels and short stories which have had healthy sales.

for films about China and its troubles.

Timely Film

The screen is reaching out now, not only for his services on original stories, but also for screen rights to his novels such as "The Iron Widow" and "Congai."

Hervey was writing "Shanghai Express" for the screen long before the Sino-Japanese crisis reached the shooting stage, and thus it was ready for release at the most opportune time.

The story Hervey wrote, as he told it to me, bears little more resemblance to the movie that was made of it than the film "Prestige" bears to Hervey's story "Lips of Steel," from which it was taken. But Hollywood is like that, and Hervey doesn't mind.

Three Stories At Once

He says: "I'm doing this picture work—and as well as I can—to make enough money to let me do afterwards what I want to do. Right now I'm working on three stories at once and am a little confused."

A native of Beaumont, Texas, Hervey passed up conventional schooling, as far as his parents would let him, in favor of the more exciting education of travel. It was always the East that called him—India at first, then China, which he prefers.

A controversy between Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Smart and the Vineland, N. About New York

By William Gaines

New York—Color film, certain wise men in the business end of the movies point out, has had several "comeback tests in the past after defects and expense removed it from the screens of the land. Each return has marked great progress in technique.

Laboratory improvements, they say, may assure general and lasting favor for color film in future picture production the very next time it gets a good chance—and that, despite the skeptics, will be the first time financial conditions warrant the taking of any more chances by the industry.

At any rate, it seems safe to say that color film is no more "dead" than aid Aunt Cynthia's straying cat.

"There are two fallacies to that argument. In one breath we hear there is more liquor used now than under the old system of saloons. If that be true then there is more grain used now than under that former system, and a return of a legalized traffic would mean not more but less used than now. The one argument of the wets defeats the other.

"Another statement we often hear," continued the speaker, "is that we must bring back the traffic in liquor, tax it as of old and by that means we shall bring back prosperity to all and restore the budget of our government. This means put the government into the business of debauching life and character.

"Long ago God said through the prophet Habakkuk: 'Woe to him that giveth his neighbor drink and putteth his bottle to him and maketh him drunken also.' Again through Paul He said that those who practice drunkenness shall not inherit the Kingdom of God. 'If there is no place in heaven in God's Kingdom, for a drunkard, there is only one place he can go—hell!'

In concluding the pastor said: 'Every Christian has a legal right to vote as he or she pleases. But in the text we are warned not to use our members as instruments of unrighteousness, unto God.' God pronounces his woes upon him who makes his neighbor drunk. As a Christian I do not want that woe resting upon me.'

Third Prosecution Alienist Finds Massie Not Insane When He Shot

HANOVER, April 25 (AP).—Dr. Joseph Catton, San Francisco alienist, expected to be the final prosecution rebuttal witness in the trial of four persons charged with the revenge murder of Joseph Kahana, submitted a report of his findings in the case.

It was learned authoritatively that Catton's findings support the prosecution contention that Lieutenant Thomas H. Massie was not insane when he held the pistol that killed the young man.

Catton will be the third alienist to combat the claim of the defense.

Washington, April 25 (AP).—A war veteran, Fred C. Reynolds, of Baltimore, was loudly hissed today by fellow-veterans when he opposed the cash bonus payment before the house ways and means committee.

One cry of "Throw him out" was heard.

Reynolds said he represented a group of veterans opposed to full payment.

"We feel this bill to be class legislation which endangers the financial stability of the government," he said. "We want you to know that there are some veterans who consider this appeal unpatriotic."

Cooper Lauds U. S. Newspapers

New York, April 25 (AP).—News-papers of America "have not shirked their duty to the public of publishing the news in adequate form," in spite of present conditions, Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press, said today in his annual report to the board of directors of the association.

"To maintain the standards reached in recent years all publishers have had to sustain severe losses," he said.

There has been some informal criticism among physicians attending the annual meeting of the Hawaiian Medical society of the use of expert testimony in the case. It was pointed out that each side had been able to obtain alienists from more than 2,000 miles away, who saw eye to eye with their employers.

MAROONS BEAT MERCERSBURG

Gettysburg High Baseballers Wallop Academy Nine 8 To 1.

Gettysburg high school won its initial baseball game of the season on Saturday by handing out a surprising 8-1 defeat to the strong Mercersburg academy nine at Mercersburg.

George Beamer, starting his first game in Maroon livery, hurled a beautiful game, allowing but six hits. The run scored off of him was the result of a long home run by Johnson. Beamer was in trouble on several occasions but each time proved his ability by working out of the tight places without any scoring.

The Maroonmen landed on the Mercersburg pitcher for six runs in the first frame and coasted in on each the second and fifth innings.

Kittinger was the hitting star of the game with four safeties in five official trips to the rubber. Beamer collected two hits while Jones, Dickson, Anthony and Robert were good for a hit apiece.

The Maroon hitting order was as follows: Kittinger, ss.; Jones and Rupp, c.; Anthony, 2b.; Kittinger, rf.; Dickson, lf.; Robert, 3b.; Knox, lf.; Beamer, p. and Plank, lb.

Score by innings:

KANAWHA DAM CAVES IN; 6 DIE

Sandy Banks, Weakened By Rains, Crumble; Night Shift Trapped.

Marmet, W. Va., April 25 (AP).—Tons of earth, torn from the banks of the Kanawha river, brought death Saturday night to at least six workmen on the new federal government dam under construction here.

Sandy banks, weakened by recent rains, crumbled down on the men of the night shift as they worked in a pit on the landward side of the lock. Two men were trapped in that cave-in.

Second Slide Traps Rescuers

Between fifty and seventy-five men went to the aid of their entombed comrades, and a second and larger slide sent one hundred tons of dirt down on the rescue workers.

Five bodies were recovered and identified as those of James Lewis Collins, 35; Alfred Rausch, 18, a water boy; Delbert Gordon, Harry Coleman, 30, formerly of Poolesville, Ohio, and Lewis M. Thornton, 22. All lived near Marmet.

Rescue workers believed only one body remains buried and that it is that of Chester Ryan, 18, of Kittanning, Pennsylvania. However, they plan to sift the small mountain of earth to make certain.

The second cave-in, in addition to burying four men, carried a two-story toolhouse and a small shed into the fifty-foot pit and disrupted the camp's lighting system.

For several hours two floodlights far out on the cofferdam furnished the only light for the seventy-five rescue workers and a steam shovel in the search for the missing men. The slide also cracked a gas line, liberating a considerable quantity of gas and causing workmen to fear an explosion.

Four bodies were recovered Saturday night within four hours after the cave-in, but the rescue crews and steam shovel worked in vain the rest of the night seeking the bodies of Gordon and Ryan. Gordon's body was found late Sunday.

HITLER FAILS TO SNATCH POWER

Defeated For Presidency, Fascist Leader, Grabs New Seats.

Berlin, April 25 (AP).—Adolf Hitler's national socialists (fascists) became the strongest political party in five German states, including Prussia, which alone constitutes two-thirds of Germany, in Diet elections Sunday, but nowhere did they prove strong enough to take over the government alone.

While in Anhalt, and possibly in Wurttemberg, they were almost certain to head Rightist coalitions, they apparently failed to gain a place in the cabinets of Prussia, Bavaria and Hamburg.

Three Fatalities Reported

A bitter campaign for supremacy between the republican government factions and the Fascist legions of the fiery Hitler, who only two weeks ago failed to win the German presidency from President von Hindenburg, ended with three fatalities, a number of other casualties and minor disorders.

The election determined the political complexion of the state Diets. All parties concentrated their efforts on Prussia on the theory that "whoever controls Prussia controls the Reich." Here the Nazis made a gain from seven seats to 162 at the expense of the German nationals, people's and state's (democratic) parties, which suffered crushing defeats.

Socialists Are Heavy Losers

The only other party gaining in Prussia was the communist, which now has 57 as compared to its former 48. The social democrats (socialists) were heavy losers, dropping from 137 to 93. Even the Catholic centrists lost four seats.

The official final count in the Prussian election returns, showing a total of 22,402,000 votes, was:

National socialists, 8,008,000; social democrats, 4,675,000; centrists, 3,374,000; communists, 2,820,000; German nationalists, 1,525,000; state's party, 332,000; people's party, 331,000; Christian socialists, 255,000; economic party, 191,000; farmers, 177,000; smaller parties, 714,000.

Wildcats Tounce Gettysburg Collegians In Hectic Tilt Saturday

Pounding the offerings of Johnny Howard and Bill Cowell for 21 safe hits and 20 runs, the strong undefeated Villanova college baseball team hung up its fifth straight win Saturday afternoon by romping over Ira Plank's Gettysburg college team at Philadelphia, 20-6.

Nine runs in the second inning proved the undoing of the Bullets. Howard was batted out of the box in this frame and Cowell, who took his place, received rough treatment. Every Villanova player collected one or more hits, Lynch leading the attack with four safeties, two of which were doubles. Captain Boughter led the Gettysburg assault with a trio of safeties.

This defeat was the second in a row for the Bullets and they are hoping to break into the win column Tuesday afternoon when they meet the Hagerstown Moller organ factory team on the college diamond at 4 o'clock.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO

An Examination of the Pupils in the Female Academy in the borough, under the superintendence of the Rev. J. H. Marsden, took place on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday last. We were highly pleased with the proficiency made in the several branches of education. The different classes in Geography, History, Natural Philosophy, Chemistry, Botany, Algebra and the French Language, acquitted themselves in a superior manner, and ample evidence was given of the capability and attention of their instructor. On Friday evening a number of interesting experiments in Chemistry were exhibited, and original pieces of composition read by some of the elder pupils, amongst which was a valedictory by one who has finished her course in the Academy. This Institution is, in our opinion, creditable to our borough—and we hope to see a strong interest felt in its favor.

It is said that the yearly meeting of the Society of Friends, at their session last week, made a rule of discipline to disown any member of that society who was concerned either in the distillation of ardent spirits, if they could not be prevailed upon to relinquish the practice.

Bow down thine ear, O Lord, hear me: or I am poor and needy.
Preserve my soul; for I am holy: O thou my God, save thy servant that trusteth in thee.

Be merciful unto me, O Lord: for I cry unto thee daily.

Rejoice the soul of thy servant: for unto thee, O Lord, do I lift up my soul.

For thou, Lord, art good, and ready to forgive; and plenteous in mercy unto all them that call upon thee.

Give ear, O Lord, unto my prayer; and attend to the voice of my supplications.

In the day of my trouble I will call upon thee: for thou wilt answer me.

Among the gods there is none like unto thee, O Lord: neither are there any works like unto thy works.

All nations whom thou hast made shall come and worship before thee, O Lord: and shall glorify thy name.

For thou art great, and doest wondrous things: thou art God alone.

Teach me thy way, O Lord: I will walk in thy truth: unite my heart to fear thy name.

I will praise thee, O Lord my God, with all my heart: and I will glorify thy name for evermore.

For great is thy mercy toward me: and thou hast delivered my soul from the lowest hell.

O God, the proud are risen against me, and the assemblies of violent men have sought after my soul; and have not set thee before them.

But thou, O Lord, art a God full of compassion, and gracious, long-suffering, and plenteous in mercy and truth.

O turn unto me, and have mercy upon me: give thy strength unto thy servant, and save the son of thine handmaid.

Shew me a token for good; that they which hate me may see it, and be ashamed; because thou, Lord, hast holden me, and comforted me.

New Court House: The Grand Jury last week reported in favor of erecting a new Court-house, not to cost over $15,000, together with the old Court House and County buildings. The action of the Grand Jury will commend itself to the approval of all having business connected with our Courts. The utter unfitness of the present Court House for a convenient and rapid despatch of business, the want of accommodations for suitors, witnesses and jurors—and above all, insecurity of the building, in which at present are deposited all of the Official Records of the county—evidences of Titles to Lands, Wills, Judgments, Mortgages, &c., in which every citizen is more or less interested—imperatively demand a new Court-House.

Destructive Fire: Mrs. Jacob Bream, who resides in the neighborhood of Trostle's Mill, in Huntington township, has met with a very severe loss by fire. His large splendid Barn was consumed on Thursday morning, April 16, about 10 o'clock, together with four valuable horses, three wagons, a family carriage and farming implements, three or four hundred bushels of wheat and large quantities of hay and straw. A good stable near the barn was also destroyed.

That it was the work of a dastardly incendiary, no person doubts who recollects that the same gentleman lost a most valuable stallion by poison about ten days previous to the burning of the barn. The fowls about the yard which ate of the grain in the trough where the horse was kept died.

It will further be recollected that Mr. Conrad Bream, a relative, who resides in the same neighborhood, had a new brick house destroyed by fire some three weeks since. No insurance on either of the properties, Mr. Jacob Bream's loss is estimated at $3,500.—Compiler.

About twelve citizens of this county left for Kansas and Nebraska on Monday last. Among them we have learned the names of Ira Shipley, George Hildebrand and John L. Wolf, from East Berlin, and Oliver Myers and a son of Dr. Stewart from York Springs. Some intend to locate permanently—others to go to make observations.

The gale and storm of Monday night last and Tuesday was a very general one, and to the East, was more violent than has occurred for many years past. From Maine to Georgia, nearly, we hear of its violence. We hope this may be the "last for the season"—for we have, in this latitude, had enough of old Boreas' frolics to satisfy any ordinary person.

Washington Highlights

By Herbert Plummer

Washington.—The fact that a tax bill—a measure carrying such tremendous increases—can be reported to congress with the unanimous approval of the house ways and means committee must go down as a rare thing in politics.

Such things in the past have been done only when the country was in a state of war.

Had either party been in complete control, probably such a thing would never have happened. But since the republicans were in the saddle on the executive bench and the democrats occupying the same position on the legislative side, there was nothing else to do but get together.

Democrats in the house simply had to bring in a tax bill. The republicans, with a president in the White House, had to come to the rescue of the treasury.

So the bill is out with neither seeming particularly anxious to take credit for it or assume responsibility.

Storms Ahead

But no one doubts that there's trouble ahead. The senate will get a whack at it before it becomes law and a battle royal may occur there.

Some of the most outspoken opponents of the plan to wipe out the deficit by taxation are senate democrats. They have been loud in their contention that the government can well afford to borrow money and spare the taxpayer.

The so-called progressive group in the senate will also be heard from when the bill gets there. There are several items that they object to. Reduction of personal exemptions from the income tax is one. The sales tax on manufacturers and some of the excise taxes, too, will draw fire from that group.

Senators like Norris of Nebraska and LaFollette of Wisconsin believe heartily that tampering with the income tax should be restricted to the higher brackets, letting the burden fall on the wealthy.

It's A Wise Father

Acting Chairman Charles Crisp of Georgia and his ways and means committee, fathers of the bill, might not recognize their 297-page child by the time it completes its journey around the hill.

But then Crisp has said publicly that all his bridges have been burned behind him and that no matter what the personal political consequences may be to him, he is determined to balance the budget.

His bill is calculated to do that very thing.

In the end, the house ways and means committee and the democrats who control it may get a lot of credit and benefit by taking the bill by the horns as they have.

WATERSPOUT SUCKS UP YACHT OFF AUSTRALIA

Sydney Australia (AP).—The crew of the "N. S. W. 11," 21-foot racing yacht, narrowly escaped death when their craft was sucked up by a great waterspout off Sydney Heads.

The yachtsmen, in describing the experience, say their boat was caught in the outer edge of a great column of water which approached them over a calm sea, as low black clouds threatened heavy rain. The yacht was whirled around and hurled upward six feet and then flung down, broken and filled with water. The crew was rescued while clinging to the remnants. The spout disappeared over the horizon.

2 LEADERS OF BONUS DEBATES

LaGuardia, Of New York, And McDuffie, Of Alabama, Lead Forces.

Washington. — The seventy-second congress—already scarred from bitter legislative battles—faces another hard fight as the proposal to slash federal salaries moves to the floor of the house.

Those who have won notable victories against the democratic and republican leadership before once more are armed for the coming fray, as are those who have resisted stubbornly the onslaughts against bipartisan measures.

Pitted against each other as the leaders of the opposing groups are brusque John McDuffie of Alabama, advocate of salary cuts, and the stocky, fiery Fiorello LaGuardia, of New York, avowed enemy of such a measure.

The two are about as different in their methods of fighting as their physical characteristics indicate.

McDuffie, democratic whip and chairman of the economy committee which brought out the salary cut proposal, dislikes and seldom engages in battles on the floor. A staunch believer in party organization, he prefers to compose differences in executive sessions.

LaGuardia, leader of the progressive bloc and captain of the forces which defeated the sales tax, on the other hand, prefers to wage open battles.

Likes the Spectacular

He loves and does the spectacular. He brewed beer in his office at the capitol once. Another time he went out in the street "one the hill" to waive immunity for an attack on Martin J. Insull, power magnate.

Among others at McDuffie's side, though a republican, is the veteran Will Wood of Indiana, ranking member of his party on the appropriations committee and outspoken in his demands for economy.

With LaGuardia, but on the democratic side, is a one-time actor, William P. Conery, Jr., chairman of the labor committee. He has told representatives that voting salary reductions would make the house "a rich man's club."

John J. Cochran of Missouri is another anti-salary reductionist.

Harold McGugin of Kansas, serving his first term and who announced shortly after his election that he would fight for a reduction in federal salaries, can be counted on for support by McDuffie.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE BIGGEST BOOK OF ALL

ONCE asked a very clever and unusual writer what books he read, and his reply was surprising: "I read no books!" His contention was that he wanted to write truly and honestly expressive, and that he wanted his own ideas to be exactly what he saw, or what he evolved from what he saw, or thought out for himself.

I am of the opinion that our greatest books have been written by those who held this same viewpoint to a large degree.

The biggest book in the world to read is the Book of the World—pages scattered everywhere that people are, and wherever nature talks loudest. The merest incidents, or the most casual of observations have been the germs for some of our greatest books.

Take it in the realm of poetry, nothing so very remarkable about the mere poetry of that poem by Joyce Kilmer where he immortalized the tree, and that other famous poem by George P. Morris, "Woodman Spare That Tree!" and yet the thought and observation suggested by each have found a responsive chord in thousands of hearts. They merely gave expression to what thousands have felt.

I recently purchased the note book of a famous writer and in it is written sentence after sentence of observations that came to him along the streets, in public gatherings, and in various places where he happened to be, and which he later embodied into stories.

If a man or woman will observe accurately—and ponder upon each observation—this self-education will amount to more than many an education gained in college halls, for after all, it is what we retain in our minds, and allow to mature into thought and expression, that counts most in education.

This world of wonder and mystery is free to us all. We may read from its pages at every step or turn of the eyes. Every person we meet and have conversation with, may be a small volume whose story we may read.

None of us will ever read in a mere published book, all that such a spectacle as the Grand Canyon is able to print indelibly upon our minds.

CHEAPER SEEDS REALLY COSTLY

Agricultural Officials Say Weeds Found In Many Samples.

The recent discovery of several supplies of extremely poor seed being offered for sale in Pennsylvania has prompted the bureau of plant industry, state department of agriculture, to repeat its warning of two months ago, for farmers to beware of cheap seed.

"One sample of orchard grass used in pasture mixtures, was examined by the seed laboratory with the result that approximately twenty-five bulblets of garlic were found in one pound," Dr. E. M. Gress, state botanist, explained. "If a farmer were to sow this seed he, no doubt, would be troubled with garlic for years to come. Not only will the garlic interfere with the growth of his crops, but it will reduce the market value of certain crops to the extent perhaps of 10 or 12 cents per bushel."

"Another sample—alsike clover—recently analyzed, contained the seeds of Canada thistle. Here again is a very noxious weed which will give trouble for many years when once established."

Low Prices

"When seeds are offered for sale below the market price, the farmer should hesitate before buying," Doctor Gress cautions. "In many such cases, something is wrong. Either the seeds have been grown in a section in which the climate is not the same as that of Pennsylvania and, therefore, not adaptable, or they contain noxious weeds or some impurity which lowers their value."

Some of these samples have been examined in our laboratory with the result that four or five per cent weed seeds were found. The sale of such seeds is a violation of the law and prohibited within the state. A farmer is never safe in this respect except when buying through a reliable seed dealer and then he should be careful to examine the tag to ascertain the analysis and the percentage of germination.

"The farmers of Pennsylvania will soon be planting corn. In order to secure a 100 per cent stand it is absolutely necessary to plant corn which will germinate 100 per cent. If the corn shows a germination test of 85 or 90 per cent the farmer can expect only an 85 or 90 per cent stand. Such a germination test can easily be made by any farmer."

"When farmers realize the great advantage in sowing seeds of high quality, high germination and free from disease they will consider any other seeds dear at any price."

In order to guide farmers in the purchase of seed the Pennsylvania department of agriculture has just published its "Report of Seed Analysis, 1931," which lists all seed supplies found to violate the state seed law as well as all supplies found to meet the specifications of statutes. This publication is bulletin 507 and can be secured free by addressing a request to the mailing room, department of agriculture, Harrisburg.

OREGON TRAPSHOT HOLDS BEST RECORD IN COUNTRY

Portland, Ore. (AP).—Figures compiled by the Amateur Trap-shooting association show Frank M. Troeh of Portland as the greatest all-around trapshot in the United States.

Troeh has broken 97,492 targets out of 100,320 for an average of .9718 since his first tournament competition in 1912. He topped the country's handicap shooters in 1930 with an average of .9212 on 3,500 targets and was second high in doubles with an average of .9169. He has annexed more than 500 prizes.

Charlie Jamieson is only player remaining with the Cleveland Indians who was with the team when it won the American league pennant in 1920.

Yankee Sluggers Set Giddy Pace In Early Games

New York (AP).—The Yanks have started swinging from their heels, and it is beginning to look like they are going to have a lot of American league teams running to cover before the season is over.

In their first six games of the season the Ruppert Rifles collected 16 home runs, and there appears no sign that the bombardment will slacken to any great degree as the campaign settles down.

Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, who collected 46 homers apiece last season, naturally were in the thick of the firing, but the long driving of Sam Byrd proved a surprise.

Byrd started the season at center field and immediately pounded out three homers, which equalled his entire output for last year. Sammy explained that he had secured a lighter budgeon and was taking a longer cut at the ball.

Earle Combs, ousted from center by Byrd, also started swinging a "home run" bat when inserted in the lineup in the place of the Babe, temporarily out of action with a cold. Combs, a line hitter, elevated his sights and drove two out of the park in his first two games.

Tony Lazzeri celebrated his return to second base after it had been to look as though he had lost his job to Jack Saltzgrave by patterning a powerful home run that gave the Yanks a victory over Boston. Bill Dickey, big catcher, is another who has been driving the ball to the far reaches of the park.

The Yanks last season performed the somewhat astounding feat of scoring 1,067 runs and not winning the pennant. Grove, Earnshaw and Walberg, great hurling trio of the Philadelphia Athletics, furnish the reason. The trio had better be good again this year, because the current Yanks appear a cinch to collect more than 1,000 runs.

John Mays and Ray Bumgarner, both of Phillipsburg, R. D., are now serving 103 days in jail as a result of failure to pay fines for illegally concealing a fawn deer. Both men were prosecuted by Game Protector W. J. Delansky, Osceola Mills.

Just Folks

POSSESSION

No need to go grasping and clutching at pleasure,
I can always find something to do with my leisure.
There is always a friend it is pleasant to sit with;
There is always a volume to revel in wit with;
And always the children, my own and the neighbors,
To fill up the time when I'm done with my labors.

No need to have oodles of cash in my pocket,
I've a box of delight if I care to unlock it—
I've stored up within me, or should have, I reckon,
All sorts of enjoyment when cares cease to beckon.
There are games I can play and can right well afford 'em—
It's all my own fault if I find life is boredom.

Who says time hangs heavily nonsense is talking,
I can have fun if I just go out walking;
I can see something my neighbor is doing,
Smell the good dinner some housewife is stewing,
Hear the birds singing and watch the shrubs growing,
And always find something that's very worth knowing.

I've countless diversions inside of me hidden,
If I'll but forget that I'm being care-ridden.
No need to be gloomy, no need to be lonely,
No need to go seeking the gay pleasures only.
I don't need some stranger from brooding to win me,
I'll find my contentment myself, for it's in me.

Vocational Nine Beats Fairfield

Arendtsville vocational school won its first baseball game in league competition on Friday afternoon by completely swamping Fairfield high at Fairfield, 20-3.

The apple-pickers were in great hitting form and pounded out 19 safeties, Russel Kane leading the assault with four safe swats. Robert and Herring, the Arendtsville battery, gave the losers but eight hits while C. Herring, Fairfield's starting pitcher, was pounded freely.

Fairfield contributed two errors to the box score and Arendtsville boot-ed the horsehide four times.

Four new records were made at this year's University of Arkansas invitation track meet.

RESEARCH REVEALS ALL-BRAN RICH IN HEALTH-ELEMENTS

Helps Correct Constipation with "Bulk" and Vitamin B; Also Has Iron

Recent scientific research shows that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains two things needed to overcome temporary and recurring constipation. It has "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract.

These two important food-elements promote regular habits, and help do away with the headaches, loss of appetite and energy, so often the result of constipation.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is mild in action—much like that of lettuce. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. Special cooking processes make ALL-BRAN finer, softer, more palatable.

Isn't this pleasant cereal way? far more healthful than using pills and drugs—so often habit-forming? Just eat two tablespoonsfuls of Kellogg's daily—enough for most types of constipation. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Besides, ALL-BRAN brings your body twice as much blood-building iron as an equal amount by weight of beef liver.

Equally tasty as a cereal with milk or cream, or used in cooking. Recipes on the red-and-green packages. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO
An Examination of the Pupils in the Female Academy in the borough, under the superintendence of the Rev. J. H. Marsden, took place on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday last. We were highly pleased with the proficiency made in the several branches of education. The different classes in Geography, History, Natural Philosophy, Chemistry, Botany, Algebra and the French Language, acquitted themselves in a superior manner, and ample evidence was given of the capability and attention of their instructor.—
On Friday evening a number of interesting experiments in Chemistry were exhibited, and original pieces of composition read by some of the elder pupils, amongst which was a valedictory by one who has finished her course in the Academy. This Institution is, in our opinion, creditable to our borough—and we hope to see a strong interest felt in its favor.

Bow down thine ear, O Lord,
hear me: or I am poor and needy.
Preserve my soul: for I am holy:
O thou my God, save thy servant
that trusteth in thee.
Be merciful unto me, O Lord:
for I cry unto thee daily.
Rejoice the soul of thy servant:
for unto thee, O Lord, do I lift up my soul.
For thou, Lord, art good, and ready to forgive: and plenteous in mercy unto all them that call upon thee.
Give ear, O Lord, unto my prayer: and attend to the voice of my supplications.
In the day of my trouble I will call upon thee: for thou wilt answer me.
Among the gods there is none like unto thee, O Lord: neither are there any works like unto thy works.
All nations whom thou hast made shall come and worship before thee, O Lord: and shall glorify thy name.
For thou art great, and doest wondrous things: thou art God alone.
Teach me thy way, O Lord: I will walk in thy truth: unite my heart to fear thy name.
I will praise thee, O Lord my God, with all my heart: and I will glorify thy name for evermore.
For great is thy mercy toward me: and thou hast delivered my soul from the lowest hell.
O God, the proud are risen against me, and the assemblies of violent men have sought after my soul: and have not set thee before them.
But thou, O Lord, art a God full of compassion, and gracious, long-suffering, and plenteous in mercy and truth.
O turn unto me, and have mercy upon me: give thy strength unto thy servant, and save the son of thine handmaid.
Shew me a token for good; that they which hate me may see it;
and be ashamed: because thou,
Lord, hast holden me, and comforted me.

New Court House: The Grand Jury last week reported in favor of erecting a new Court-house, not to cost over $15,000, together with the old Court House and County buildings. The action of the Grand Jury will commend itself to the approval of all having business connected with our Courts. The utter unfitness of the present Court-House for a convenient and rapid despatch of business, the want of accommodations for suitors, witnesses and jurors—and above all, insecurity of the building, in which at present are deposited all of the Official Records of the county—evidences of Titles to Lands, Wills, Judgments, Mortgages, &c., in which every citizen is more or less interested—imperatively demand a new Court-House.

Destructive Fire: Mrs. Jacob
Bream, who resides in the neighborhood of Trostle's Mill, in Huntington township, has met with a very severe loss by fire. His large splendid barn was consumed on Thursday morning, April 16, about 10½ o'clock, together with four valuable horses, three wagons, a family carriage and farming implements, three or four hundred bushels of wheat and large quantities of hay and straw. A good stable near the barn was also destroyed.
That it was the work of a dastardly incendiary, no person doubts who recollects that the same gentleman lost a most valuable stallion by poison about ten days previous to the burning of the barn.
The fowls about the yard which ate of the grain in the trough where the horse was kept died.

It will further be recollected that Mr. Conrad Bream, a relative, who resides in the same neighborhood, had a new brick house destroyed by fire some three weeks since. No insurance on either of the properties. Mr. Jacob Bream's loss is estimated at $3,500.—Compiler.

Washington Highlights

By Herbert Plummer

Washington.—The fact that a tax bill—a measure carrying such tremendous increases—can be reported to congress with the unanimous approval of the house ways and means committee must go down as a rare thing in politics.

Such things in the past have been done only when the country was in a state of war.

Had either party been in complete control, probably such a thing would never have happened. But since the Republicans were in the saddle on the executive bench and the Democrats occupying the same position on the legislative side, there was nothing else to do but get together.

Democrats in the house simply had to bring in a tax bill. The Republicans, with a president in the White House, had to come to the rescue of the treasury.

So the bill is out with neither seeming particularly anxious to take credit for it or assume responsibility.

Storms Ahead

But no one doubts that there's trouble ahead. The senate will get a whack at it before it becomes law and a battle royal may occur there.

Some of the most outspoken opponents of the plan to wipe out the deficit by taxation are senate Democrats. They have been loud in their contention that the government can well afford to borrow money and spare the taxpayer.

The so-called progressive group in the senate will also be heard from when the bill gets there. There are several items that they object to. Reduction of personal exemptions from the income tax is one. The sales tax on manufacturers and some of the excise taxes, too, will draw fire from that group.

Senators like Norris of Nebraska and LaFollette of Wisconsin believe heartily that tampering with the income tax should be restricted to the higher brackets, letting the burden fall on the wealthy.

It's A Wise Father

Acting Chairman Charles Crisp of Georgia and his ways and means committee, fathers of the bill, might not recognize their 297-page child by the time it completes its journey around the hill.

But then Crisp has said publicly that all his bridges have been burned behind him and that no matter what the personal political consequences may be to him, he is determined to balance the budget.

His bill is calculated to do that very thing.

And who can tell?
In the end, the house ways and means committee and the Democrats who control it may get a lot of credit and benefit by taking the bill by the horns as they have.

WATERSPOUT SUCKS UP YACHT OFF AUSTRALIA

Sydney, Australia (AP)—The crew of the "N. S. W. 11," 21-foot racing yacht, narrowly escaped death when their craft was sucked up by a great waterspout off Sydney Heads.

The yachtsmen, in describing the experience, say their boat was caught in the outer edge of a great column of water which approached them over a calm sea, as low black clouds threatened heavy rain.

The yacht was whirled, around and hurled upward six feet and then flung down, broken and filled with water. The crew was rescued while clinging to the remnants.
The spout disappeared over the horizon.

2 LEADERS OF BONUS DEBATES

LaGuardia, Of New York, And McDuffie, Of Alabama, Lead Forces.

Washington.—The seventy-second congress—already scarred from bitter legislative battles—faces another hard fight as the proposal to slash federal salaries moves to the floor of the house.

Those who have won notable victories against the democratic and republican leadership before once more are armed for the coming fray, as are those who have resisted stubbornly the onslaughts against bipartisan measures.

Pitted against each other as the leaders of the opposing groups are bravado John McDuffie of Alabama, advocate of salary cuts, and the stocky, fiery Fiorello LaGuardia, of New York, avowed enemy of such a measure.

The two are about as different in their methods of fighting as their physical characteristics indicate.

McDuffie, democratic whip and chairman of the economy committee which brought out the salary cut proposals, dislikes and seldom engages in battles on the floor. A staunch believer in party organization, he prefers to compose differences in executive sessions.

LaGuardia, leader of the progressive bloc and captain of the forces which defeated the sales tax, on the other hand, prefers to wage open battles.

Likes the Spectacular

He loves and does the spectacular.
He brewed beer in his office at the capitol once. Another time he went out in the street "one the hill" to waive immunity for an attack on Martin J. Insull, power magnate.

Among others at McDuffie's side,
though a republican, is the veteran Will Wood of Indiana, ranking member of his party on the appropriations committee and outspoken in his demands for economy.

With LaGuardia, but on the democratic side, is a one-time actor, William P. Cournery, Jr., chairman of the labor committee. He has told representatives that voting salary reductions would make the house "a rich man's club."

John J. Cochran of Missouri is another anti-salary reductionist.
Harold McGugin of Kansas, serving his first term and who announced shortly after his election that he would fight for a reduction in federal salaries, can be counted on for support by McDuffie.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE BIGGEST BOOK OF ALL

ONCE asked a very clever and unusual writer what books he read, and his reply was surprising: "I read no books!" His contention was that he wanted to write truly and honestly expressive, and that he wanted his own ideas to be exactly what he saw, or what he evolved from what he saw, or thought out for himself.

I am of the opinion that our greatest books have been written by those who held this same viewpoint to a large degree.

The biggest book in the world to read is the Book of the World—pages scattered everywhere that people are, and wherever nature talks loudest. The merest incidents, or the most casual of observations have been the germs for some of our greatest books.

Take it in the realm of poetry, nothing so very remarkable about the mere poetry of that poem by Joyce Kilmer where he immortalized the tree, and that other famous poem by George P. Morris, "Woodman Spare That Tree!" and yet the thought and observation suggested by each have found a responsive chord in thousands of hearts. They merely gave expression to what thousands have felt.

I recently purchased the note book of a famous writer and in it is written sentence after sentence of observations that came to him along the streets, in public gatherings, and in various places where he happened to be, and which he later embodied into stories.

If a man or woman will observe accurately—and ponder upon each observation—this self-education will amount to more than many an education gained in college halls, for after all, it is what we retain in our minds, and allow to mature into thought and expression, that counts most in education.

This world of wonder and mystery is free to us all. We may read from its pages at every step or turn of the eyes. Every person we meet and have conversation with, may be a small-volume whose story we may read.

None of us will ever read in a mere published book, all that such a spectacle as the Grand Canyon is able to print indelibly upon our minds.

CHEAPER SEEDS REALLY COSTLY

Agricultural Officials Say Weeds Found In Many Samples.

The recent discovery of several supplies of extremely poor seed being offered for sale in Pennsylvania has prompted the bureau of plant industry, state department of agriculture, to repeat its warning of two months ago, for farmers to beware of cheap seed.

"One sample of orchard grass used in pasture mixtures, was examined by the seed laboratory with the result that approximately twenty-five bubblits of garlic were found in one pound," Dr. E. M.
Gress, state botanist, explained. "If a farmer were to sow this seed he,
no doubt, would be troubled with garlic for years to come. Not only will the garlic interfere with the growth of his crops, but it will reduce the market value of certain crops to the extent perhaps of 10 or 12 cents per bushel.

"Another sample—alsike clover—recently analyzed, contained the seeds of Canada thistle. Here again is a very noxious weed which will give trouble for many years when once established.

Low Prices

"When seeds are offered for sale
below the market price, the farmer should hesitate before buying." Doctor Gress cautions. "In many such cases, something is wrong. Either the seeds have been grown in a section in which the climate is not the same as that of Pennsylvania and, therefore, not adaptable, or they contain noxious weeds or some impurity which lowers their value.

Some of these samples have been examined in our laboratory with the result that four or five per cent weed seeds were found. The sale of such seeds is a violation of the law and prohibited within the state. A farmer is never safe in this respect except when buying through a reliable seed dealer and then he should be careful to examine the tag to ascertain the analysis and the percentage of germination.

"The farmers of Pennsylvania will soon be planting corn. In order to secure a 100 per cent stand it is absolutely necessary to plant corn which will germinate 100 per cent.
If the corn shows a germination test of 85 or 90 per cent the farmer can expect only an 85 or 90 per cent stand. Such a germination test, can easily be made by any farmer."

"When farmers realize the great advantage in sowing seeds of high quality, high germination and free from disease they will consider any other seeds dear at any price."

In order to guide farmers in the purchase of seed the Pennsylvania department of agriculture has just published its "Report of Seed Analysis, 1931," which lists all seed supplies found to violate the state seed law as well as all supplies found to meet the specifications of statutes. This publication is bulletin 507 and can be secured free by

OREGON TRAPSHOT HOLDS BEST RECORD IN COUNTRY

Portland, Ore. (AP)—Figures
compiled by the Amateur Trap shooting association show Frank M. Troch of Portland as the greatest all-around trapshot in the United States.

Troch has broken 97,492 targets out of 100,320 for an average of 9718 since his first tournament competition in 1912. He topped the country's handicap shooters in 1930 with an average of 9212 on 3,500 targets and was second high in doubles with an average of 9169. He has annexed more than 500 prizes.

Charlie Jamieson is only player remaining with the Cleveland Indians who was with the team when it won the American league pennant in 1920.

Yankee Sluggers Set Giddy Pace In Early Games

New York (AP)—The Yanks have started swinging from their heels, and it is beginning to look like they are going to have a lot of American league teams running to cover before the season is over.

In their first six games of the season the Ruppert Rifles collected 16 home runs, and there appears no sign that the bombardment will slacken to any great degree as the campaign settles down.

Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, who collected 46 homers apiece last season, naturally were in the thick of the firing, but the long driving of Sam Byrd proved a surprise.

Byrd started the season at center field and immediately pounded out three homers, which equalled his entire output for last year. Sammy explained that he had secured a lighter bludgeon and was taking a longer cut at the ball.

Earle Combs, ousted from center by Byrd, also started swinging a "home run" bat when inserted in the lineup in the place of the Babe, temporarily out of action with a cold. Combs, a line hitter, elevated his sights and drove two out of the park in his first two games.

Tony Lazzeri celebrated his return to second base after it had begun to look as though he had lost his job to Jack Saltzgaver by patterned a powerful home run that gave the Yanks a victory over Boston. Bill Dickey, big catcher, is another who has been driving the ball to the far reaches of the park.

The Yanks last season performed the somewhat astounding feat of scoring 1,067 runs and not winning the pennant. Grove, Earnshaw and Walberg, great hurling trio of the Philadelphia Athletics, furnish the reason. The trio had better be good again this year, because the current Yanks appear a cinch to collect more than 1,000 runs.

John Mays and Ray Bumbarger, both of Philadelphia R. D., are now serving 103 days in jail as a result of failure to pay fines for illegally concealing a fawn deer. Both men were prosecuted by Game Protector W. J. Delansky, Osceola Mills.

POSSESSION

No need to go grasping and clutching at pleasure.
I can always find something to do with my leisure.
There is always a friend it is pleasant to sit with.
There is always a volume to revel in with.
And always the children, my own
and the neighbors.
To fill up the time when I'm done
with my labors.

No need to have

No need to have goddies of cash in my pocket.
I've a box of delight if I care to unlock it—
I've stored up within me, or should have, I reckon,
All sorts of enjoyment when cares cease to beckon.
There are games I can play and can right well afford 'em—
It's all my own fault if I find life is boredom.

Who says time hangs

Who says time hangs heavily nonsense is talking.
I can have fun if I just go out walking.
I can see something my neighbor is doing.
Smell the good dinner some housewife is stewing.
Hear the birds singing and watch
the shrubs growing.
And always find something that's very worth knowing.

I've countless diversions

I've countless diversions inside of me hidden.
If I'll but forget that I'm being care-ridden.
No need to be gloomy, no need to be lonely.
No need to go seeking the gay pleasures only.
I don't need some stranger, from brooding to win me.
I'll find my contentment myself, for it's in me.

Vocational Nine Beats Fairfield

Arendtsville vocational school won its first baseball game in league competition on Friday afternoon by completely swamping Fairfield high at Fairfield, 20-3.

The apple-pickers were in great hitting form and pounded out 19 safeties, Russel Kane leading the assault with four safe swats. Rebert and Herring, the Arendtsville battery, gave the losers but eight hits while C. Herring, Fairfield's starting pitcher, was pounded freely.

Fairfield contributed two errors to the box score and Arendtsville booted the horsehide four times.

Four new records were made at this year's University of Arkansas invitation track meet:

RESEARCH REVEALS ALL-BRAN RICH IN HEALTH-ELEMENTS

Helps Correct Constipation with "Bulk" and Vitamin B;
Also Has Iron

Recent scientific research shows that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains two things needed to overcome temporary and recurring constipation.
It has "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract.

These two important food-elements promote regular habits, and help do away with the headaches, loss of appetite and energy, so often the result of constipation.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is mild in action—much like that of lettuce. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. Special cooking processes make ALL-BRAN finer, softer, more palatable.

Isn't this pleasant "cereal way"
far more healthful than using pills and drugs—so often habit-forming?
Just eat two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's daily—enough for most types of constipation. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Besides, ALL-BRAN brings your body twice as much blood-building iron as an equal amount by weight of beef liver.

IDEAL OF WOMEN! IDOL OF MEN!

Constance BENNETT LADY WITH A PAST
with BEN LYON DAVID MANNERS

LET ME TELL YOU PERSONALLY THE AMAZING STORY OF NATEX

I can show you how to quickly and easily restore the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to better health and activity thru this wonderful new prescription.

I wish it were possible to extend an invitation to every sick, ailing and rundown man or woman in this vicinity to come in to see me and learn from me personally about the surprising new prescription tonic which has already created so much talk since its recent introduction.

Here is a real medicine you cannot afford to ignore, an opportunity to build up the vibrant, buoyant, health, the keen appetite and the energy and ambition which you may be lacking now.

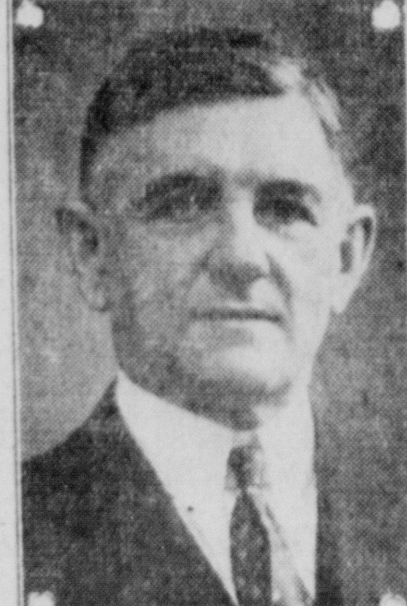

If you are not feeling in the best of health or rather half sick so that you can't do your best work, there is no excuse for it. If stomach troubles are torturing you from day to day so that your appetite has dwindled away and the food that you do eat creates gas and brings on indigestion, heartburn, dyspepsia, and other ailments, here is a new way to get quick and real relief.

If your liver is inactive and you suffer with constipation, headaches, dizziness, spots before the eyes, coated tongue and other liver ills, you have only to try this new prescription and relief will come quickly and positively. If your kidneys are deranged and are unable to drain the impurities from the blood which cause rheumatic suffering, neuritis, backaches, etc., do not delay for each day's delay means that the work of recovery becomes increasingly hard.

If you feel lazy and indolent and tired, and wake up in the morning feeling as though you have worked hard all through the night, it is only because the various organs of your body are not functioning properly and here is a new, quick and sure way to get relief.

But all the words in the world won't tell you one half as much about Natex and what it will do for you as a trial of the medicine itself. Go to Bender's Cut Rate Store (formerly Murphy's), 16 Baltimore St. Let them tell you more about this amazing prescription and notice the change in even one week's time and what new vibrant health it brings you after a month's treatment. Accept no substitute for there is no other medicine like Natex.

SPORT SLANTS
BY ALAN GOULD
ASSOCIATED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

Art Shires spent most of the winter down in Italy, Texas, where the family homestead is located, listened to some good advice from the "old man" and has buckled down to the job making himself the regular first baseman of the Boston Braves.
This paternal "talking to" is one of the things which have convinced the onetime playboy of the American league it is high time he got down to business.
Another reason is that Art suddenly lost nearly all his financial resources in the failure of a savings institution in Hollywood last year. The third and by no means the least of the influences is his young wife.
"So you see it isn't just myself now," Shires told me in the course of a frank discussion of his shortcomings, his escapades and his future.
"I don't mind giving you boys things to write about, just so long as you don't have me saying things I don't mean. My idea isn't to look foolish, you know, even if I do my share of kidding and give the fans a few laughs. They are entitled to some entertainment and I can give it to 'em."
"But my main job is playing ball from now on. If I don't make good with the Braves, it may be taps in the big leagues for little Arthur."
"I don't think, in spite of all the silly things I did, that I got a real break in the American league. They acted like they just put up with me and that was all. Then they tried to make an outfielder out of me in Washington until I tossed my glove at Walter Johnson and told him I couldn't do it. Following that I got the air."
"That year in the American association did me a lot of good. I'm still young enough to get a fresh start. I'm sure I can hit."
Sophomore Slugger
The youngest and most highly-touted of the Yankees' recruits, Frank Crosetti of San Francisco, looks like a college sophomore but handles himself and his bat like a veteran.
He may not be seasoned enough to break in as a regular right away but he looks like one of the coming stars. He will be given every chance to come through. Joe McCarthy believes he will.
The coast youngster has experienced the thrill of his career in being plucked by the New York club. He retains a boyish wonder at the feats of the one and only Babe Ruth.
"Boy, what power!" Crosetti said to me as he watched Ruth pound the ball into the outer reaches of the training park at St. Petersburg. "It's great to be on the club with that fellow."
Boyhood Idol
Ruth has been Crosetti's idol ever since Frank was playing ball on the sandlots in California. He set out in life determined to be a ballplayer. His first semi-pro job was with a team in the Montana copper country at Butte. He was only 17 then. Since then he has had three great seasons with the Frisco club of the Pacific Coast league.

Crosetti and Jack Saltgaver, the keystone kids, have a chance to repeat the Yankee history made in 1920 when Koenig and Lazzeri won regular infield jobs in their first year and helped the club regain the American league pennant.

If the enterprising mayor of Daytona Beach, E. H. Armstrong, has his way about it, there will be a carnival of speed kings on the ocean speedway there next February when the moon and tide combine to smooth out the world's most famous racing stretch.

Sir Malcolm Campbell, far from satisfied that his 253,968 miles-per-hour record is the best he can do, has promised tentatively to return for his third straight battle with Old Pop Time.

Norman "Wizard" Smith, who has been making gestures at Campbell's record on Ninety Mile Beach, in New Zealand, will be urged to pack up his Napier-motored machine and ship it to the United States.

On top of this, J. M. White, Philadelphia manufacturer whose ill-fated Triplex once set a world's mile record at Daytona, is understood to be planning a new speed creation, and the old master himself, none other than Barney Oldfield, talks with enthusiasm about returning to Daytona at the wheel of a new Miller racing car.

The chances, of course, are against all of these prospects bearing fruit. Nevertheless the consistency with which the British drivers and British cars have been coming over here to take the speed records apart finally has prompted some homebred patriotic activity.

"We can build cars just as fast or faster," declares Oldfield. "Why let these fellows keep coming over here and make us look like back-numbers at the game we started. It's positively embarrassing."

From the way Campbell talked before leaving, however, it would look like a good idea for the Americans to figure on starting at 300 m.p.h. and working up. Sir Malcolm thinks he may be traveling that fast himself in another year.

If he does they may have to add a few miles to the ocean speedway. Eleven or twelve miles won't be enough in which to get the maximum acceleration, at that rate.

Campbell Near-Sighted
Campbell doesn't like to discuss it, but the fact is that the noted British driver is near-sighted, as a result of having been knocked unconscious several times in accidents. He has difficulty reading but at long range his sight is perfect.

Since it's far-sightedness that counts when you are moving along at better than four miles a minute, the captain's ocular condition does not come under the heading of a hazard. He isn't worried about it.

Babe Collects On Golf
Golfing has helped add years to Babe Ruth's baseball career, for two reasons.

First, it has given the Babe a healthful hobby. Second, it has done more than anything else to strengthen his legs.

On top of that he has ambitions to become a tournament start. He isn't consistent enough now to hold his own for more than a round or two in fast company.

Babe is a better match than medal player but his game unquestionably has improved steadily. Whereas he used to be lucky to break 80 once in twelve rounds he now turns the trick at least once in every three rounds, without regard to the battleground.
